The world of SME legal has changed, perhaps forever, after two years of the greatest challenges most of us have ever faced in business. In addition to the old problems, many new ones now need our attention as well.

LPM22 provided a forum for active discussion and problem solving, as well as the opportunity to listen to inspirational and thought-provoking talks. Additionally, attendees had the opportunity to mix with their peers in the LPM community.

The day boosted everyone's energy and gave them the chance to reflect on some of the great changes of our time. It embodied some change of its own too, leaving behind the old format of long speeches and absorbed information to embrace an approach of active engagement, problem solving and peer-to-peer learning – mainly led and facilitated by the event partners.

GUEST LIST

A total of 84 law firm leaders from over 50 SME law firms paid £99+vat to attend. It is without a doubt that the LPM Conference is back in person!

TESTIMONIALS

Director of Business Development
& Digital Marketing Paris Smith LLP

“In this event, I met people who have faced similar growing pains, and it’s been great to sense check our progress and be sure we’re going in the right direction. During LPM22, I had the opportunity to share experiences, meet suppliers and legal experts. It’s been a great day at LPM22, and the facilitators are great too.”

Brian Inkster, CEO
Inksters

“I have attended several LPM conferences in the past, and I find that they are great for people who run a law practice. LPM addresses the practical issues we deal with every day. I wouldn’t keep coming back if that weren’t the case.”

Anna Elagina, Finance Director
Boult Wade Tennant

“This type of event MUST be attended by anyone who is in the legal profession. It takes you out of the day-to-day, where you can actually open your mind to new ideas, talk to new people and make new contacts as well.”

Paul Longhurst,
Consultant/Director
3Kites Consulting

“The thinking hats segment was really interesting, it engaged people more readily.”

Aaron Naisbitt, Sales Director
CTS

“It’s a great opportunity for people to come along but it’s also about doing it properly and looking ahead at what the event is really about and coming prepared.”

Sam Dobson, Account Manager
NetDocuments

“I would absolutely recommend this conference to any other legal tech firm. For us, being able to get in and amongst those who actually work within law firms, especially where we are trying to develop those relationships a little bit further than just meeting at a stand, is where we can actually start to give some input.”

Practice Manager,
rhw Solicitors LLP

“I just wanted to say a huge thank you to you and everyone involved in arranging and hosting such a great event. It was lovely to catch up with people I haven’t seen for years and to meet lots of interesting, new characters too. The speakers were all really good and the table led activities were excellent. All in all, a thoroughly enjoyable day and I look forward to next year!”

Visiting London for the first time since the pandemic. #LPMconference

First talk from Vicky Pryce, Chief Economic Advisor for CEPR. Looking at everything from world relationships to supply chain issues and stagflation.

Other talks on key issues such as staff attraction and retention, risk and compliance, change and innovation, hybrid working and culture & values.

So much to discuss and debate. Good day ahead!

This was a really good event hosted by those lovely people at Burlington Media. It even had singing, of a slightly dubious quality... sorry everyone, I couldn't help myself :-)
